Early Intervention refers specifically to services and supports for families of infants and toddlers, birth to three years of age, with disabilities or delays. RISE Early Intervention provides services through Arizona Early Intervention Program (AzEIP).

Every child enrolled in an AzEIP has a regional team, consisting of a speech-language pathologist, occupational therapist, physical therapist, developmental specialist, psychologist and social worker.

Early Intervention specialists provide high quality supports and services in your home. We utilize a team approach because you know your child best. Working together, you and your RISE team will identify and build on those activities that appeal to your child's interests to create opportunities for development and learning.

RISE Early Intervention uses strategies based on research that shows the value of using everyday activities and routines that occur in your home, natural environment, and neighborhood to promote your child's growth and development.
